MINISTRY OF LABOUR

RESOLUTION

(Directorate General of Resettlement & Employment)

New Delhi, the 21st August 1956

No. TR/EP-24/56.—In pursuance of the recommendation of the All-India Council for Technical Education, the Government of India in the Ministry of Labour Resolution No. RTA-428(5), dated the 22nd May, 1951, appointed a Committee called the National Trade Certification Investigation Committee with instructions to prepare a scheme for the establishment of an All-India Trades Certification Board which will award certificates of proficiency to Craftsmen in the various engineering and building trades. The report of this Committee as also the recommendations of the Training and Employment Services Organisation Committee (known as the Shiva Rao Committee) have been considered by the Government of India. They agree with both the Committees that there is need for setting up a Central agency for co-ordinating the training programmes in the country bringing about uniformity of standards, and awarding certificates of proficiency in craftsmanship on an all India basis. Such a step will be in the interest of both the industry and the workers in as much as it will ensure that the holders of National Certificates possess a minimum recognised degree of skill and will, in addition, facilitate mobility of tradesmen and their employment.

2. The Government of India have also decided to transfer the administration of the training organisation under the Directorate General of Resettlement and Employment to the control of the State Governments concerned, retaining for themselves the functions of co-ordination of craftsmen training and of laying down the training policy. This decision has further accentuated the need for a Central agency for assisting or advising the Central Government in the discharge of their responsibilities regarding craftsmen training. It has accordingly been decided, in consultation with the State Governments and other interests affected, to set up a National Council for Training in Vocational Trades and entrust to it functions relating to the establishing and awarding of National Trades Certificates for craftsmen, the prescribing of standards and curricula for craftsmen training in the technical and vocational trades of national importance throughout the country, and advising and assisting the Central Government on the overall training policy and programmes.
